PACIFIC PACT EXPECTED TO PASS SENATE THIS WEEK

Favorable Action Looked For, Despite Opposition

HUGHES EXPLAINS

Official Text Of Tariff Treaty Received Here

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, March 13.—It is expected that the Senate opposition to the Pacific Treaty will terminate at the end of the present week, when a favorable vote is expected. The naval limitation and Chinese treaties will then go through rapidly.

Nevertheless, the difficulties in connection with the Pacific Treaty are by no means ended. Both the Republican and Democratic leaders intend to pass a reservation, agreed to by the Foreign Relations Committee, pointing out that the Treaty does not contain any commitment of America to armed force. It remains to be seen, however, whether a majority in favor of ratification with this reservation, exists. Though a number of Republicans are strongly opposed to any reservation if their votes should defeat the reservation, it is possible that a sufficient number on the other side would turn against the Treaty to prevent its ratification. Senators, however, are all loyal to the administration and men are not likely to carry stubbornness too far.

The debate reached highwater mark on Saturday when Senator Underwood read a letter from Mr. Hughes, in which the Secretary of State set aside the charges that the American Delegation had been duped, adding there was not the slightest mystery about the Treaty or any basis for suspicion regarding it. Senator Borah is the most able of the opponents of the Treaty, but unless he can reanimate the debate, the Senate leaders' belief that the end is near, seems justified. No good cause has yet been shown why the Treaty, subject to the above reservation, should not be ratified.

(China Press Service)

Washington, March 12.—Opponents of the Quadruple Pact in the Senate now openly assert that the American delegates not only concealed the trend of negotiations from the public, but misled the public by their admissions as they are responsible for the fallacious information that was given out.

Secretary Hughes is bitterly arraigned for his statements regarding the trend of the treaty. It is stated that when the conclusion of the treaty was imminent, he told the correspondents he would not acknowlege such a project as was outlined, thus misleading the correspondents and injuring them professionally.

Following is the official text of the treaty for the revision of the Chinese Tariff:

The treaty relative to the Chinese tariff and cognate matters reads:

The United States of America, Belgium, British Empire, China, France, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands and Portugal:

With a view to increasing the revenues of the Chinese Government, have resolved to conclude a treaty relating to the revision of the Chinese customs tariff and cognate matters, and to that end have appointed as their plenipotentiaries:

Here follows the names of the plenipotentiaries.

Who, having communicated to each other their full powers, found to be in good and due form, have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

The representative of the contracting powers having adopted, on February 4, 1922, in the City of Washington, a resolution, which is appended as an annex to this article, with respect to the revision of Chinese customs duties, for the purpose of making such duties equivalent to an effective 5 percent ad valorem, in accordance with existing treaties, concluded by China with other nations, the contracting powers hereby confirm the said resolution and undertake to accept the tariff rates fixed as a result of such revision. The said tariff rates shall become effective as soon as possible, but not earlier

PRINCE OF WALES CONCLUDES VISIT TO INDIAN STATES

Brilliant Function At Kapurthala; Throngs Cheer Him

(Reuter's Service)

Prince of Wales Camp, Kapurthala, March 13.—Reuters special correspondent with the Prince of Wales telegraphs:

The Prince of Wales visited Kapurthala today and was warmly welcomed by H. H. the Maharajah of Kapurthala, his sons and the leading state officials.

Although the visit was informal the station was gorgeously decorated and the route to the palace was lined with state troops. The Prince motored through the well decorated streets and was cheered by large crowds from the housetops and by people thronging the roadsides.

After attending a garden party His Royal Highness motored through the streets which were densely packed, to the Peoples Fair, the crowd giving him an ovation on the way.

A state banquet was held tonight in his honor. It was His Royal Highness' last brilliant function in India and his visit to Kapurthala concludes his visits to the Indian States.

The palace was beautifully illuminated. The Maharajah, toasting the Prince of Wales, welcomed him as heir to a mighty throne which, he said, firmly united the scattered nations of the British Empire. The Prince of Wales had set an inspiring example in sharing the perils and privations of his countrymen during the late war.

The Prince of Wales in rising to reply received an ovation. He said he was pleased with his visit to Kapurthala and at renewing the Maharajah's acquaintance. He eulogised the splendid war services of Kapurthala State, in both men and money, and added that the Maharajah had also helped in other ways to win victory and it was, he hoped, the desire to serve King and Country that would always inspire the people of Kapurthala.

The Prince of Wales left for Dehradun today.

300,000 OUT IN BRITAIN'S ENGINEERING INDUSTRIES

Shop Management Is Question In Dispute

SOVIETISM SEEN

Employers Fighting To Retain Present System

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 12.—The engineering dispute arose over the question of overtime. The amalgamated Engineering Union contend that they are entitled to a voice in determining the amount and condition of overtime under the agreement of September, 1920, and declare that the question is of vital importance to the Union in view of the enormous amount of unemployment in the engineering industry. The employers claim full discretion when ordering overtime. They describe the Union's claim as an interference with the managerial functions and that it is making the issue one of whether the industry is to be carried on a Soviet basis or on a basis of private enterprise.

London, March 13.—The members of the Engineering Union at Belfast have decided to strike in support of the engineers of Great Britain. Two thousand men are affected.

London, March 11.—The engineering lockout has begun. All the unions concerned have refused the employers' suggestion of a ballot on the ground that the result would be a foregone conclusion.

Later.—As a result of the lockout, fifty thousand engineers on the Clyde were idled today.

The lockout is at present limited to the amalgamated engineering unionists, numbering three hundred thousand.

A meeting of delegates of other engineering unions representing half a million semi-skilled and unskilled workers today accepted the employers' offer of a fortnight in which to complete a ballot on the question of shop management.

Further Government intervention regarding the amalgamated unions' lockout is unlikely.

Yokohama Dockers Clash With Police

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, March 6.—There was a clash yesterday between the strikers of the Yokohama Dockyards and the police. The trouble began when the police, numbering about 200, began to arrest some 30 representatives of the workmen in the vicinity of the Takashima Station. This action brought other workmen to the vicinity of the station, and further trouble was only averted by the police promising to release those arrested.

The strikers then held a meeting at their headquarters and in the course of the demonstration the police arrested about 21 of them. There also was an attempt to visit the home of one of the influential directors of the Dockyard Company but it was frustrated by the police and ended in the arrest of more of the men.

WOMAN TO DIE FOR MURDER OF HER HUSBAND

First Instance Of Kind In Mixed Court; Two Men Also Sentenced

Convicted of assisting in the murder of her husband, a Chinese woman was sentenced yesterday by Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Li to be sent to the Arsenal for execution—the first instance of the infliction of capital punishment on a woman in the annals of the Mixed Court. The woman will be put to death by strangulation. Two men who claim to be relatives of the woman, but whom the police declare to have been her paramours, will pay the death penalty in the usual way at the Arsenal, where they will be shot.

The murder was committed on March 7 at 8 Yangchow Road, where Nyi Doong-kyoh was hacked to death with choppers wielded by the trio who were charged. The victim, not yet dead, was discovered by a basketmaker who leases the building, after his wife had heard strange noises in the upper part of the place, rooms in which had been rented to the murdered man. The basketmaker's wife had seen the two men and the woman leave the house and one of the men was shortly thereafter arrested by Yangtszepoo police. From information secured from this man the police were able to effect the arrest of the other two in a house in the country near the Arsenal. The woman thereupon accused the other two of slaying her husband and said that she took no part in it herself, but yesterday in court she admitted that she also struck her husband with a chopper.

It was brought out in the testimony that the husband had had trouble with the men over his wife and that he had tried unsucessfully to persuade her to return to him. The two male accused declared that the trouble arose out of a debt which Nyi owed one of them and that Nyi attacked them first.

Some years ago in the Mixed Court there was a case on similar lines and the Magistrate ordered that the woman involved be sent to the Arsenal for strangulation. The Assessor, however, dissented in his decision and there was subsequently a retrial of the case and sentence of imprisonment was imposed.

Survey Of Washington Conference Is Made By Envoy Wang Chung-hui

Eight Hundred Throng Chamber of Commerce To Hear Delegate Who Made Fight On 21 Demands; To Leave For North Thursday

An exhaustive and comprehensive survey of the Washington Conference from the Chinese standpoint was made yesterday at the Chinese Chamber of Commerce by Dr. Wang Chung-hui, China's plenipotentiary at the Disarmament Conference who returned to Shanghai by the Pine Tree State on Sunday. The three treaties signed by China at Washington, the six resolutions passed by the conference which effect China's rights and the two paramount issues, the Shantung controversy and the twenty-one demands formed the topics of Dr. Wang's interesting address.

Over 800 people attended the lecture. Many schools closed their classes to enable their students to hear the talk. The spacious hall was well crowded long before the hour set for the function, which was given under the auspices of the Kiangsu Educational Association, the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, the Chinese Bankers Association, the Chinese City Chamber of Commerce and the City Educational Association. Mr. C. C. Nieh, Chairman of the General Chamber of Commerce, presided.

TOO HOPEFUL

"Our people entertained too great a hope for the Washington Conference, which was called not for the solution of Far Eastern questions alone as most of our people believed but for the limitation of armaments," said Dr. Wang, after giving a brief review of his own work in Europe prior to his appointment to Washington.

"Our people hoped that all the wrongs that China suffered during the last 80 years will be righted at the conference. I was quite aware of this. When I sailed from Europe, I told Dr. Wellington Koo that China would get about 10 percent of what her people desired. Now when I look at the results I believe we have secured but five percent. It is not the fault of the people that they should expect more. Neither is it the fault of the conference that it did not accomplish any more.

"The conference was not a judicial tribunal where nations were tried with other nations act as complainants. It was a conference, so unanimity must be secured in order any question might find a settlement. The Washington Conference differs from the Versailles Conference in that at Paris, the conquerors was dictating terms to the conquered whereas at the American Capital, nations were participating on equal footings.

SIGNED THREE PACTS

"China signed three treaties at Washington. The first was the nine power treaty which respects the territorial and administrative integrity of China. The principles involved were enunciated before in other treaties, but the difference is that this time they were observed by all the nine powers in solemn conference in Washington while at other times, these were simply declared between China and some other country.

"The second treaty signed was with regards to the open door policy in China. There had been a great deal of misconception of this principle. Some even interpreted as to mean 'spheres of influence,' which is diametrically opposite to the open door. This treaty defines the principle as to mean equal commercial and industrial opportunities by the foreign powers in China. It aims to break up the sphere of influence already established by the powers and also to respect the neutrality of China in case of war between foreign nations.

"The tariff treaty was the last one we signed. It aims at eventual Chinese tariff autonomy. The powers represented at Washington doubted very much the sincerity of China in disarming her 1,500,000 troops. There was plenty of propaganda to inform the world that 70 percent of the national revenue was being used for military equipment. The treaty grants an effective five percent ad valorem, stipulates a periodical revision of the rates and the establishment of a commission to hasten the abolishment of the likin system, after which China will be given a customs increase of 12½ percent."

SCORES LIKIN

Dr. Wang here expressed the hope that China will soon secure her autonomy in tariff which would mean so much revenue to her. The solution now lies with China herself, as she could increase her tariff as soon as her much abused likin system is abolished. Secretary of State Hughes expressed a similar hope at the final session of the conference, Dr. Wang said.

Coming to the resolutions, Dr. Wang referred to the decisions of the conference on the abolition of the foreign post offices on January 1, 1923, except those in leased territories and settlements, the withdrawal of foreign troops through revision of existing treaties and through added security to foreign lives and property, the conference's hope of Chinese disarmament, the publication of all secret pacts, the purchase by Peking of wireless stations at reasonable prices and the investigation of the judicial system with a view to abolishing the rights of extraterritoriality.

DIRECT DEAL EXPLAINED

The speaker then gave two reasons why the Shantung award had to be dealt with under "direct conversation."

"To bring the Shantung issue before the conference would mean the revision of the Versailles treaty, which had been signed by six of the nine powers represented at Washington. So these six powers would undoubtedly vote against the revision and the Shantung issue would be lost before it entered the conference. If we would bring up the matter after its defeat in the main con-

MARSHAL JOFFRE SAILS TO AMERICA; CHINA BIDS ADIEU

Prominent City Officials See Noted Warrior Off On Silver State

When Marshal Joffre, the hero of the Marne who has been the guest of China and of Shanghai for the past several weeks, left for America yesterday he was accompanied and bidden adieu by the most prominent of local officials, particularly Chinese.

Among the Chinese government representatives accompanying the distinguished visitor from the jetty to the steamer Silver State were Mr. C. F. Hsu, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs; Mr. S. K. Chen, Secretary of the Foreign Bureau; General and Madame Tang Pao-chao; Councellor Chu of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Messrs. Tao and Wei of the Ministry of Communications.

Admiral Tsiang Chen, the Commander-in-chief of the Chinese Navy placed a naval despatch boat at the disposal of the Marshal and a Chinese gunboat fired a 19 gun salute at Woosung as Marshal Joffre's steamer passed by.

The Marshal left from the French mail jetty in a special naval despatch boat manned by sailors from the Chinese gunboats in harbor shortly after 2 o'clock after a rousing farewell reception at the pier. Guards of honor from the French gunboats in harbor, Chinese troops from the Arsenal and Annamite police escorted him to the pier and a large crowd of Chinese and foreign residents of the French Concession and the Settlement, including many officials, were there to bid him bon voyage.

Two bands, one from General Ho Feng-ling's yamen, and the French Municipal band played the Marseillaise and other stirring French tunes just before his departure.

C. T. Wang Accepts Shantung Job; To Ask Co-operation

Proposes To Form Commission Consisting Of Experts Of Arms Parley

The organisation of a Commission on Shantung Rehabilitation is suggested in a telegram filed with the President Friday by Dr. C. T. Wang, newly appointed director-general of Shantung Rehabilitation.

The plan calls for the appointment of one of the three principal delegates to the Washington Conference, the two people's delegates, Dr. David Z. T. Yui and Dr. Monling Chiang and the two Shantung delegates to the conference, Mr. Hsu Tung-fang and Mr. Tang to the commission. The commission will decide on the organisation of the Chinese half of the Sino-Japanese Commission which will carry out the handing over of the Shantung Railway and other properties by Japan.

Dr. Wang will assume his new post in about ten days. He is in Shanghai now to winding up all unfinished affairs.

MANY DEAD IN RAND STRIKE; GEN. SMUTS FIRED UPON

Six Hundred Casualties; Fighting Severe

WALKOUT 'CLOAK'

Premier Says Extremists Are Cause Of Trouble

(Reuter's Service)

Johannesburg, March 13.—General Smuts has arrived and taken over control of the situation. He had a very narrow escape en route, a bullet striking the motor car in which he was travelling.

Farmers and others of all shades of opinion have responded splendidly to the Government's call.

Pretoria, March 13.—Overwhelming Government forces are sweeping in on all sides. The operations against the rebels are proceeding satisfactorily. Aeroplanes yesterday dropped supplies for detached police forces and also heavily bombed the revolutionaries in the Brixton area.

Johannesburg, March 13.—General Smuts in the course of a statement with regard to the situation on the Rand said that the present revolutionary movement was the work of extremist agitators who used the strike in the mines as a cloak for the dissemination of syndicalist views. The military situation was well in hand. Loyal citizens were actively supporting the Government and it should not take long to re-establish peaceful conditions. The mass of workers outside Witwatersrand had refused to be stampeded into a general strike. All over the Union the natives had shown exemplary forbearance throughout.

(China Press Service)

Johannesburg, March 12.—Upwards of 200 dead and twice as many wounded is the toll taken by the strike in this and surrounding areas, according to a summary of the reports that reached here including those of the late afternoon. The Rand is one seething mass of civil war. Only a general uprising of the natives is lacking and it is hourly expected.

The city is beleaguered by the Benoni commandoes but the military have cleared several areas with machinegun fire from aeroplanes.

The entire force of the government now has been called into play and several important captures of entire commandoes have been reported. The government forces have suffered heavy casualties.

(Reuter's Service)

Johannesburg, March 12.—The military have taken prisoner 1,500 strikers in the Brixton area, which is now cleared, thus menacing the rebel commandoes whose casualties in the course of the operations have been heavy.

Pretoria, March 12.—A communique issued yesterday states that there was considerable fighting on the Rand during the greater part of the day. The strikers were most active, burning houses at Benoni and Boksburg, doubtlessly in retaliation for the bombing by aeroplanes. Two commandoes suffered severe casaulties as a result of being bombed by aeroplanes.

The Imperial Light Horse were attacked while employed on fatigue duties and put up an excellent fight. They pressed back and eventually pursued the strikers, making 16 prisoners. The communique adds that the Government has now mobilised formidable forces.

Johannesburg, March 12.—Thirtyfive persons were killed and several were wounded in the course of a fight between a commando and a detachment of the Imperial Light Horse. The latter's casualties were 6 killed and 15 wounded. The dead included an officer. Johannesburg streets are thronged with huge crowds, including women and children, listening to the firing, which is very heavy.

Guerilla warfare is being carried on around the center of the town. Natal troops and other Government reinforcements are arriving. Aeroplanes have been firing with machine-guns on the strikers, who attacked the Powerstation.

Pretoria, March 12.—Martial law has been inforced. The authorities have suppressed the Nationalist laborite newspapers, closed the Trades Hall, and seized all papers found on the premises.

Bloemfontein, March 13.—It is announced that Genl. Hertzog and other influential nationalists do not countenance the formation of strike commandoes.

Cape Town, March 12.—The general strike movement outside the Rand has hitherto been very limited. Strikers at Durban have formed a commando but there has been no sign of violence. Conditions are practically normal at Cape Town and Bloemfontein.

Johannesburg, March 11.—Fighting has been resumed in the Newlands and Fordsburg areas with continuous rifle and revolver fire and occasional machine-gun bursts. The number of casualties is not yet known.

A detachment of the Transvaal Scottish, composed chiefly of ex-service men, was ambushed at Benoni. Eighteen were killed and 25 wounded.

Fighting continues to occur in a fairly wide area. The sound of volleys is continually heard and ambulance cars are dashing in all directions. The Government forces have occupied Brakpan and are now advancing to the Springs and have taken many strikers prisoners. The Benoni commandoes have been endeavoring to occupy Johannesburg itself and have already partially surrounded the city.

The strikers have burned the Fordsburg Police station. The Police at present are merely holding the key to the positions, meanwhile the concentration of Government forces is proceeding most rapidly. Burgher forces, which will arrive shortly with artillery, will take up their positions.

Pacific Treaty Expected To Pass

ANNEX

With a view to providing additional revenue to meet the needs of the Chinese Government, the powers represented at this conference, namely, the United States of America, Belgium, British Empire, China, France, Italy, Japan, Netherlands and Portugal, agree:

That the customs schedule of duties on imports into China, adopted by the Tariff Revisions Commission at Shanghai on December 19, 1918, shall forthwith be revised so that rates of duty shall be equivalent to 5 percent effective, as provided for in the several commercial treaties to which China is a party.

A revision commission shall meet at Shanghai, at the earliest practicable date, to effect this revision forthwith and on the general lines of the last revision.

This commission shall be composed of representatives of the powers above named and of representatives of any additional powers, having Governments at present recognised by the powers represented at this conference and who have treaties with China, providing for a tariff on imports and exports not to exceed 5 percent ad valorem and who desire to participate therein.

The revision shall proceed as rapidly as possible, with a view to its completion within four months from the date of the adoption of this resolution by the Conference on the Limitation of Armaments and Pacific and Far Eastern Questions.

The revised tariff shall become effective as soon as possible, but not earlier than two months after its publication by the Revision Commission.

The Government of the United States, as convener of the present conference, is requested forthwith to communicate the terms of this resolution to the Governments of powers not represented at this conference, but who participated in the revision of 1918 aforesaid.

ARTICLE II

Immediate steps shall be taken through a special conference to prepare the way for the speedy abolition of Likin and for the fulfilment of the other conditions laid down in Article VIII of the treaty of September 5, 1902, between Great Britain and China, in Articles IV. and V. of the treaty of October 8, 1903, between the United States and China, and in Article I of the supplementary treaty of October 8, 1903, between Japan and China, with a view to levying the surtaxes provided for in these articles.

The special conference shall be composed of representatives of the signatory powers, and of such other powers as may desire to participate and may adhere to the present treaty, in accord with the provisions of Article VIII., in sufficient time to allow their representatives to take part. It shall meet in China within three months after the coming into force of the present treaty on a day and at a place to be designated by the Chinese Government.

ARTICLE III

The special conference provided for in Article II. shall consider the interim provisions to be applied prior to the abolition of likin and the fulfillment of the other conditions laid down in the articles of the treaties mentioned in Article II.; and it shall authorise the levying of a surtax on dutiable imports as from such date, for such purposes and subject to such conditions as it may determine.

The surtax shall be at a uniform rate of 2½ per centum ad valorem, provided that in case of certain articles of luxury which, in the opinion of the special conference, can bear a greater increase without unduly impending trade, the total surtax may be increased, but may not exceed 5 per centum ad valorem.

ARTICLE IV

Following the immediate revision of the customs schedule of duties on imports into China, mentioned in Article I., there shall be a further revision thereof, to take effect at the expiration of four years following the completion of the aforesaid immediate revision, in order to insure that the customs duties shall correspond to the ad valorem rates fixed by the special conference provided in Article II.

Following this further revision there shall be, for the same purpose, periodical revisions of the customs schedule of duties of imports into China every seven years, in lieu of the decennial revision authorised by existing treaties with China.

In order to prevent delay, any revision made in pursuance of this article shall be effected in accord with rules to be prescribed by the special conference provided for in Article II.

ARTICLE V

In all matters relating to customs duties there shall be effective equality of treatment and of opportunity for all the contracting powers.

ARTICLE VI

The principle of uniformity in the rates of customs duties levied at all the land and maritime frontiers of China is hereby recognised. The special conference provided for in Article II. shall make arrangements to give practical effect to this principle, and it is authorised to make equitable adjustments in those cases in which a customs privilege to be abolished was granted in return for some local economic advantage.

In the meantime, any increase in the rates of customs duties resulting from tariff revision or any surtax hereafter imposed in pursuance of the present treaty, shall be levied at a uniform rate ad valorem at all land and maritime frontiers of China.

ARTICLE VII

The charge for transit passes shall be at the rate of 2½ per centum ad valorem until the arrangements provided for by Article II come into force.

ARTICLE VIII

Powers not signatory to the present treaty, whose Governments are at present recognised by the signatory powers and whose present treaties with China provide for a tariff on imports and exports not to exceed 5 per centum ad valorem, shall be invited to adhere to the present treaty.

The Government of the United States undertakes to make the necessary communications for this purpose and to inform the Governments of the contracting powers of the replies received. Adherence by any power shall become effective on receipt of notice thereof by the Government of the United States.

ARTICLE IX

The provisions of the present treaty shall override all stipulations of treaties between China and the respective contracting powers, which are inconsistent therewith, other than stipulations according most favored nation treatment.

ARTICLE X

The present treaty shall be ratified by the contracting powers in accord with their respective constitutional methods and shall take effect on the date of the deposit of all the ratifications, which shall take place at Washington as soon as possible. The Government of the United States will transmit to the other contracting powers a certified copy of the proces verbal of the deposit of ratifications.

The present treaty, of which the English and French texts are both authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States and duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the other contracing powers.

In faith, whereof the above-named plenipotentiaries have signed the present treaty.

Done at the City of Washington the sixth day of February, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two.

RESERVE RULING IN SALVAGE CASE AT BRITISH COURT

Judgment was reserved by Judge Peter Grain of the British Supreme Court yesterday at the conclusion of argument in the action brought by the Shanghai Tug and Lighter Co. to recover Tls. 55,000 from the Ocean Steamship Co., Ltd., alleged due for salvage operations following the grounding of its steamer Glaucus on Tungsha Grit last August.

Following testimony of Capt. J. H. Jones, assistant manager of Holt's wharf, regarding the tonnage of cargo discharged from the ship, Mr. R. N. MacLeod, for the defense, stated that there was no serious dispute except as to the amount of claim. The only definite thing they had to go by was the value of the ship and cargo. Plaintiffs had placed this at three million taels and had referred to various percentages. What might assist them was the actual out-of-pocket expenses of the plaintiffs, which had been put at Tls. 25,000. He cited salvage cases and stated that in one digest of such cases there were only six instances where a sum of over £10,000 declared had been put forward was asked. The claim, counsel declared had been put forward in a way which not only justified fighting it but justified asking that plaintiffs pay the cost of the enquiry.

Mr. D. McNeill, replying, contended that the sum asked was unusually low and said that it would be difficult to find a case where similar services had been rendered for so little a sum. A letter written in reply to the plaintiffs and alluding to the services as merely towage and lighterage, counsel characterised as a "silly, rude answer." He emphasised the risk to the Glaucus and also cited a number of salvage cases in support of the Tug and Lighterage Company's claim.

PEKING—SUIYUAN RAIL EXTENSION PLAN MODIFIED

Lighter Road Than Originally Intended Will Be Built

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 10.—The following announcement has been made by the Ministry of Communications:

The Ministry of Communications considers that the construction of the Suiyuancheng-Paotocien Railway, the extension of the Peking-Suiyuan line, is of great importance for the purpose of opening up communications to the North-west, developing industry there, protecting the Mongolian frontier and facilitating transportation on the present line.

This question has already been put before a Cabinet meeting when regulations were laid down for floating loans for the purpose and the Railway administration was accordingly instructed to proceed with the scheme immediately the administration, however, is at present short of funds and has had to cut down its estimates.

The original estimate for construction of the line was over $6,000,000 and the work was to be commenced in June last year and to be completed by the end of December. Owing to the preparations for opening of the Peking-Suiyuan through service, the commencement of construction was delayed until September and the line divided into sections, work beginning on the first section. Soon winter set in and work had again to be suspended. Later on the money market became extraordinarily tight and loan subscriptions were limited, there being a shortage of funds for the payment of wages. Consequently the date originally fixed for the through service is likely to be delayed. Recently, since Mr. Tang, Director of the railway administration took charge, it has been arranged that a light railway should be laid as was done on the line from Chochuphan to Suiyuancheng. The line on which it is proposed to run this light railway is over 270 li in length. The original cost will be considerably reduced as the tunnels, drainage, bridges, stations etc. will be constructed to meet the requirements of the light railway instead of in accordance with the original plans. The rail will be laid in sections in order to facilitate transportation during the construction of the line. It is estimated that $1,250,000 will cover the cost of construction. The rails should all be laid by the end of May and through traffic be opened by October of this year. Should funds be available at an early date the work will be expedited and the through service may then start as early as June or July.

These tablets contain no pepsin but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest the food naturally.

Northern Pacific Before She Took Death Plunge

A REMARKABLE scene from one of the rescue ships showing the Northern Pacific afire at sea, with the smoke and flames pouring from her decks and portholes as the big boat began to list. She burned to the water's edge and sank. Of the crew of twenty-four twenty were saved at once and four adrift in a long life-boat were rescued hours later. A forty-mile gale fanned the blaze and added to the peril of the rescuers. It is suspected that a firebug aboard the vessel, probably before she left Brooklyn, was responsible for the blaze. The ship, which sank off Cape May, N. J., was of 8,256 tons and was one of the fastest American merchantmen.

Mixed Court Refuses Ejectment Order Asked For By Bank

The Mixed Court yesterday refused to grant an ejectment order asked by the Ningpo Commercial Bank and applying to a pawnbroker occupying premises at 459 Chekiang Road.

Mr. Krisel, appearing for the bank, stated that there had recently been a fire in the building and the ejectment was desired in order that repairs and alterations might be carried out. He said that the tenant had been notified but refused to move out.

Mr. J. Em. Lemiere, for the pawnbroker, declared that the action resulted from an unsuccessful attempt to squeeze money out of his client and exhibited photographs to show that the fire damage in the shop was negligible and was being played upon merely as an excuse to get the pawnbroker out of the premises.

When Assessor Tenney and the Magistrate refused to grant the order Mr. Krisel inquired if the petition might be resubmitted if the Municipal Council approved the proposed alterations.

The court held that the application might be resubmitted only if the alterations were demanded by the Municipality.

CHANG HU AND BANKERS SCORE GEN. WU PEI-FU

Chinese Financiers Say Wu's Opposition Is Driving Public Bankrupt

Mr. Chang Hu, Minister of Finance, has issued a lengthy declaration, refusing to return to his office on account of the obstruction placed in his way by militarists, according to a Tientsin telegram. The announcement is made as a result of Wu Pei-fu's opposition to his new issue of the $96,000,000 Salt Surplus Loan, which has been approved by the Chinese Banking Association of Peking.

In reply to General Wu's protest against the loan, the Banking Association asked the Chihli warlord to be more considerate over the conditions of the merchants and the men in the street. It stated that the Government owes much to the bankers, whose funds belong to the people. If the government refrains from returning the money, the banks as well as the people will become bankrupt.

"If you ask us to refrain from accepting the new issue," concluded the message, "please devise some other means whereby our funds may be returned."

Captain Jensen After Another Record Broom

Captain Mike Jensen, popular commander of the Admiral liner Pine Tree State, will take the liner out for Manila at 11 o'clock this morning and chop off the usual stopping time at Manila and Hongkong in an effort to win another broom when he reaches Seattle despite the delay here because of fog.

On Captain Jensen's last trip across the Pacific he shattered all records since the war by taking the Pine Tree State from Yokohama to Victoria in 9 days, 10 hours and 5 minutes, the fastest time made by any ship on the Japan-American run since 1914. He was presented with a broom for sweeping the seas of time records at Seattle.

The Pine Tree State is due back from Manila on March 25 and will not come up the river, anchoring at Woosung.

JAPANESE ENVOY DENIES MIXING IN CHINESE POLITICS

General Higashi, Military Attache, Issues Statement

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 9.—Reuter has been requested to circulate the following statement by General Higashi, Japanese Military Attache in Peking:

"Since Marshal Tuan Chih-jui removed his residence to Tientsin some time ago there have been in circulation all sorts of rumors regarding his motive and activities, and some of the Chinese papers have from time to time circulated reports purporting to show that some Japanese militarists were behind the alleged activities of Marshal Tuan and his followers. In some instances my name was mentioned as being involved in the alleged Japanese support of one party or the other.

"It was reported by a Shanghai paper that Colonel Honjo of Mukden came to Peking some time ago to act as an intermediary between Marshal Tuan Chih-jui, Marshal Chang Tso-lin and Mr. Liang Shih-yi and myself to secure Japanese military assistance in an alliance to be formed against General Wu Pei-fu and his party. It was also reported in another paper that I was involved in a scheme to transport Chinese arms kept in Shanghai to Hunan with a view to giving assistance to General Chao Hung-ti.

"These are only a few examples of the astounding stories that have been circulated by some interested party to alienate Japan from one party or the other. The fallacy of these reports is fully proved by the fact that Colonel Honjo has never been in Peking during the last seven or eight years, and that I have never been asked by anybody to assist in the alleged transport of arms to Hunan. Apparently there is a force at work all the time, which is trying to benefit itself by circulating these baseless reports.

"It is hardly necessary to point out that the attitude of the Japanese Government on the political situation in China is that of strict neutrality. When the reports of Marshal Tuan Chih-jui's removal to Tientsin reached Tokio the Japanese Government semi-officially announced its intention to remain strictly neutral on the situation. This step was taken in view of the possibility of various groundless rumors being started by an interested party, ready to avail itself of the situation to serve its own purpose at the cost of the name and prestige of another.

"Friendly neutrality towards the political situation in China is not only the declared attitude of the Japanese Government but is also the unanimous demand of public opinion in Japan, and it is needless to repeat here that the Japanese Military Representatives in China are acting strictly in accordance with instructions from their Home Government. In fact it is impossible for them to act otherwise."

SHIP CREW FORMS SOVIET; LEADERS HELD IN JAIL

When the sailing barque William Dollar slipped her moorings at Port Angeles up in the Elliott Bay country some two months ago to adventure over the Pacific into the distant Far East the skipper, Captain F. A. McDonald, had in his crew of twenty men a stalwart of the higher councils of the International Workers of the World—Agamemnon Hughes, no less—and also aboard with Hughes, who had heard all about Russia, were a number of ardent I. W. W. disciples. And thus it falls out that Mr. Hughes along with Messrs. T. Swenson, Patrick Higgins, Jan Roos, Joe Scott and Nels Petersen passed the night in the American jail to appear today before United States Commissioner F. J. Schuhl.

Captain McDonald avers it was a terrible voyage, going on to explain that in the closing weeks of the 72 days at sea the crew formed a soviet to take over the direction of the ship. It was upon his showing that the soviet sought to function when a gale was blowing that the various warrants were issued. According to Captain McDonald the soviet met and overruled an order to shorten sail when the weather began to get ugly and to save the ship he and an officer had to cut away lashings. In other ways his authority was defied, he said, and as the outcome of his recital to Capt. W. I Eisler, U. S. Shipping Board Representative, the leading spirits of the crew were arrested.

The technical charge that the men will answer today is refusal to obey orders aboard ship.

Sea-Sickness Can be Prevented!

No Drugging—No Unpleasant After-Effects.

An appreciative doctor wrote:—

"Lady——was placed under my care for the voyage Home. I could not accept any responsibility as I considered she was in great danger from haemorrhage should she vomit. She had always been a very bad sailor. As a precaution she was given two capsules of 'KIRBY'S SEA-SICK CURE' immediately she went on board. We got into rough water shortly before midnight, but Lady——had an undisturbed night's rest. She took one capsule half-an-hour before dressing. She had breakfast in the dining hall, and assured me she had no sensation of nausea or sickness. Although we had rough weather for five days, and at other periods of the voyage, she was not sea-sick. There was no nausea of any kind, and the remedy produced no after-effects."

WALES DEFEATS IRELAND 11 TO 5 IN RUGBY MATCH

Welsh Forwards In A Dashing Attack Pile Up A Good Score

35,000 PEOPLE ATTENDED

Irish Energy Discounted By Tremendous Defense Of Victors

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 11.—In a rugby football match at Swansea today, Wales beat Ireland by 11 points to five.

The match was played in ideal weather before an attendance estimated at 35,000. At the outset the Irish forwards showed the greatest liveliness and made several good raids, but the Welsh backs tackled finely. After a couple of promising movements by the Welsh team had failed to result in a score being made, Wales was awarded two penalties, both of which were fruitless.

The Irish backs played with tremendous energy in the loose and the Welsh defense had to stem two strong attacks which reached within a few yards of their line. Following upon a dash by the Welsh forwards, Whitfield scored a try wide out, which, however, was not converted. Nearing the interval the Welsh backs lost many chances owing to faulty handling.

At the interval the score stood as follows:

Wales ..... 3 points
Ireland ..... 0 points

Five minutes after the resumption of play, Whitfield scored another try for Wales, which Samuels, the fullback, converted. Immediately after, Stokes scored a brilliant try for Ireland which Wallies converted.

During the remainder of the game, Wales did most of the attacking, and Islwyn-Evans scored a try, which, however, Samuels failed to convert.

TITLES FALL FAST AND EASILY AT TIENTSIN GALA

(China Press Correspondence)

Tientsin, March 11.—Championships both in wrestling and boxing were won and lost here last night in easy fashion, at the Gala Night held at Gordon Hall. The mat title for North China was awarded to Lieut. Neill of the U. S. Marine corps before the public began to realise that he was accomplishing anything over his opponent, Fred Grimes of Tientsin; other titles flitted from alleged champs all out of condition, to others possessed of the timely wallop.

The star event of the evening was for the middleweight title of the north country between F. G. Frie of the Peking Marines and "Fighting" George Razee of the 15th Infantry. "Fighting" George nursed the floor well through the first three rounds, and in the fourth took the full count from a terrific wallop to the jaw.

The semifinal also went to the Marines. Jack Kelly from Peking, a 152-pounder bested "Battling" Frank Ortega throughout their six round bout, and gained an easy decision.

A Marine named Barson took the opener over Lubby of Tientsin. The latter hadn't a chance with the Peking fighter. The men weighed about 125 lbs.

The remaining bout went the limit to a draw between James B. Farmer of Peking and Joseph W. Stout of the 15th Infantry.

College Boy On Way Around World Stops In Shanghai

A tour abroad, around the world and back again to Akron, is the ambition, already half accomplished, of Russel Reusing, a young American College boy who is now in Shanghai, enroute homeward around the other edge of the globe.

Reusling left his home in Akron, Ohio on May 18 and since then has been successfully working his way and seeing all the sights en route. From Seattle he branched north to Alaska, working on a railroad two degrees south of the Arctic circle for three months before returning to Seattle.

From Seattle Reusing worked across the Pacific, visiting the Philippines and then Japan. He arrived in Shanghai from Peking after visiting Korea, and Mukden, Tientsin, Hangchow and Peking. He celebrated his twentieth birthday in the capital. From Shanghai he goes to Hongkong and then starts for India, Egypt and Europe. He hopes to complete his trip by October when he will return to college.

New Grid Coaching System Is Planned

A new system of football training is being worked out at Indiana University for introduction next fall, according to Roscoe (Cow) Minton, former Indiana gridiron star, and coach of the freshman squad last season. Here are some of the proposals:

"Dates" will be barred completely during football seasons at Indiana hereafter.

All "he-men" are expected to try out for the football team.

Only a physician's certificate of inability will prevent a student who does not appear in football togs from being placed on the "slacker" list.

Freshmen will be taught football, instead of trying to learn the plays of the different elevens Indiana will meet during the season.

Second, third and fourth elevens will be used for the varsity battering ram so that the freshmen, when they become eligible for the varsity, will know something about football, instead of a conglomerate mass of plays as used by the universities of the Central West running through their heads.

The plan has met with favor among the faculty and undergraduates of the university and was received enthusiastically by the alumni.

SCOTTISH TAKE S. V. C. SHIELD IN FAST MATCH

Win Honor As First Winners To New Fraser Trophy

THE SCORE WAS 3 NIL

Gunners Played An Erratic Game And Weakened Toward End

By a clean-cut victory of 3-0 over the Machine Gunners in the final round of the competition for the S. V. C. Shield, the Scottish Company on Sunday annexed honors as football champions of the Volunteer Corps. The shield was presented to the winners by the donor Sir Everard Fraser, British consul-general.

The Machine Gunners, with the exception of two or three players, played a very erratic game and missed several opportunities to score. From the start, the play was hard, and neither side appeared to have any great advantage. Ten minutes before the interval, Dailey started the movement which resulted in the first goal for the Scottish. Running up the line, he centered when tackled by Leach. Chassells gathered the ball and shot hard at the goal keeper. Wade stopped the ball, but it glanced off his gloves into the corner of the net.

In the second half, the Machine Gunners seemed to have weakened considerably. The Scottish began a determined attack which resulted in a melee before the gunners' goal. It ended when Brown tried to clear, but turned the ball into the net and gave the Scottish their second goal. The third goal came in the same way.

Ghandi's Arrest Called Blunder By Students Of Political Events In India

(Reuter's Service)

Delhi, March 12.—Indian opinion on the arrest of Mr. Gandhi is reflected in a speech by the Pundit Malariya, who declared that the arrest was a great blunder.

Ahmedabad, March 12.—The District Superintendent of Police, Mr. Halley, while motoring to arrest Mr. Gandhi at his institute near Ahmedabad encountered Shankerlal Banker, a well know Bombay merchant and a leading Nationalist, whom he arrested and took to the institute, where he arrived at 10:30 p.m.

Most of the inmates had retired but they soon paraded before Mr. Gandhi's residence, where they prayed and sang his favorite hymn and paid obeisance to him.

Mr. Gandhi, his wife and Shankerlal Banker were taken to the gaol.

Mr. Gandhi's last words were "work hard, the not." He exhorted all lovers of India to remain peaceful all over India.

At midnight Mr. Halley searched the office of the vernacular newspaper and collected a few of Mr. Gandhi's original contributions to the newspaper Young India in 1921-22, which, it is understood, will form basis of the charge against him.

Bombay, March 12.—The news of Mr. Montagu's resignation has shocked the Indians as it was totally unexpected. The noncooperators and moderates regret his loss while the extremists expect that he will be replaced by a reactionary politician and are inclined to consider that he was sacrificed to the alleged anti-Turkish policy of the Imperial Government.

The Anglo-Indian newspapers, while warmly praising Mr. Montagu's devotion to his ideals, consider that India is not likely to suffer by his resignation.

Delhi, March 12.—Twenty Mohammedan members of the Indian Legislature have wired to Mr. Lloyd George protesting against the Imperial Government's "deplorable action" in connection with Mr. Montagu's resignation, declaring that Mr. Montagu was sacrificed in the anti-Khilafat cause and that the Government of India's recent message contains the minimum Moslem demands.

Calcutta, March 12.—At a meeting of the Bengal Legislative Council yesterday, all the Indian members except eleven left the chamber owing to the President's refusal to adjourn the house as a token of regret of Mr. Montagu's resignation.

Agra, March 12.—The Viceroy in the course of a speech here yesterday expressed his personal regret at the resignation of Mr. Montagu and paid a tribute to his devotion to India's cause. Lord Reading emphatically denied the rumors of differences between the Imperial and Indian Governments with regard to the policy in respect of non-co-operation.

London, March 11.—Mr. E. S. Montagu addressing his constituents today asserted that his fall was not due to the publication of the Indian Government's despatch which was a matter of a Minister's individual responsibility and not the Cabinet's collective responsibility, but was due to the Premier's desire to placate the Conservatives, with the Government dangerously near a collapse.

Mr. Montagu disclosed the fact that the Indian Government had telegraphed him twice urging his assent to the publication of their despatch. Knowing of Lord Reading's difficulties, he said, he had felt bound to support the Viceroy.

The speaker asked whether the Governments of Canada, South Africa or Australia would have remained silent when a so-called peace was destroying their internal peace as the Treaty of Sevres was destroying the peace of India.

London, March 11.—In a speech at Cambridge Mr. Montagu said he had circulated the Indian Government's telegrams among members of the Cabinet on March 3, and that he told Lord Curzon on the occasion of the cabinet meeting on March 6 that he had authorised its publication on March 4.

Thus, Mr. Montagu added, Lord Curzon could, if he desired, have resumed his seat in the Cabinet, which was still sitting, and have urged his colleagues to object to publication of the telegram. There was ample time to send a telegram stopping its publication.

Lord Curzon, however, maintained silence, and sent to Mr. Montagu the same evening "one of those plaintive, hectoring, bullying, and complaining letters which are so familiar to his colleagues and friends," requesting that the matter should not be discussed at the Cabinet meeting and asking Mr. Montagu not to allow publication of such documents in future without consulting him.

PLANS TO BUY RAILWAY GIVEN BY DAVID YUI

Kiangsu Association Hears Redemption Scheme Of People's Delegate

Plans were suggested for the redemption of the Shantung Railway at the conference of the Kiangsu Association held Sunday at Mr. S. A. Hardoon's Garden by Dr. David Z. T. Yui, people's delegate to the Washington Conference.

The organisation of an executive bureau to handle funds and effect the ultimate redemption of the railway was advocated by the speaker, who suggested three plans of establishment. The first plan is to allow the Chambers of Commerce, the Educational Association and other public bodies to organise campaigns for funds and send their representatives to a specified city to form the central committee. The second plan is to have them organise in accordance with their provinces and have each province send a fixed number of representatives to a certain specified city for the purpose of creating the central body. The last plan is to have the Chinese banks organise its central body, pledge one-third of the amount required, namely $10,000,000 and conduct a campaign under their auspices for the raising of the remaining $20,000,000.

The central committee is to raise the $30,000,000, to contract with the central government for the operation of the railway after its redemption and to devise means of taking over the railway from the Japanese within nine months after the signing of the Shantung treaty.

That the Shantung railway should be a model railway for China is also urged by Dr. Yui. The speaker stated that while the powers represented at Washington had long ceased to respect the Peking Government, they are aware of the fact that the Chinese people are capable of carrying out their obligations to humanity. If Chinese fail to redeem the railway, even the little respect that the powers have for the people will be lost and China's destruction would be near.

The Kiangsu association held its annual election following Dr. Yui's speech. The following were elected directors of the association: Chang Chien, Huang [illegible], Shen Hsin-ching, H. Y. Moh, Chang Yi-ling, Huang Yi-ling, Fang Hui, Han Kuo-chun, Wang Ching-wei, Chien Chung-kuo, Chang Chien, jr. Yung Chung-chien, Ma Shih-chi, Chu Nan-chiang, Chu Shao-wen, Wu Shao-chen, Tang Hui-chi, Heu Koo-jen, and Chang Char.

Reparations Made Conditional On U. S.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, March 11.—The newspapers welcome the scheme submitted to the conference of Allied Finance Ministers by Sir Robert Horne, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, dividing the German debt into two parts, first, of sixty-five milliard marks which is equivalent to the total Inter-Allied debts and will only be demanded from Germany in the event of the United States claiming the repayment of Allied debts, and, secondly, of seventy milliards which will be mobilised in the form of a loan and paid to Germany's creditors.

Mexico's Population Is Now 14,000,000

Mexico City, Feb. 18.—The population of Mexico is a trifle more than 14,000,000, according to figures recently compiled by the census bureau which has just completed its enumeration. This represents a loss of approximately 1,000,000 since the last census was taken in 1910. The decrease is ascribed to emigration of natives and foreigners during the periods of revolution.

Officials here assert that there are now more than 4,000,000 Mexicans living in the United States.

Survey Of Washington Conference Is Made By Envoy Wang Chung-hui

ference, Japan would have had a much stronger position than if we consented to direct conversation.

"I saw no hope of bringing this question up before the League of Nations. A similar question came up concerning Chile and Bolivia at the League. The issue involved was whether the Versailles Treaty could be revised. The league's stand was in the negative and no doubt the Shantung issue would have met with the same fate if it was brought up at the league.

METHOD IS HAPPY

"The method adopted finally therefore is a happy medium. It was not direct negotiation, because the United States and Great Britain were represented at the conversations. It was not brought before the main conference because the other five powers had no hand in the settlement of the question. To show you how difficult that question was, I wish to mention the fact that the question occupied 39 conversations. At one stage of the negotiations, it was deadlocked for two weeks and the longest session on the record of the conference was devoted to the business of Shantung. I attribute the settlement of the issue to two causes: the firm attitude of China on the question and Japan's fear that she would be held responsible for the consequences if the question failed to secure settlement at the parley.

"The Kiaochow-Tsinan Railway was the crux of the whole Shantung question. Our demand was its unconditional return. Japan offered a loan on it. There was a deadlock. Our counter-offer was to redeem the line by cash payment. Japan then wanted to spread the payment into installment lasting 15 years. The final settlement as you know was the redemption of the railway within 15 years, but China may have the option of redeeming the entire road in five years. Japan is also to have a traffic manager and chief accountant under the supervision of the Chinese director-general.

PUBLIC OBJECTS STAND

China, of course, objected strenuously the employment of these two Japanese officers. But it was argued that two employes can do no harm when China today has 2,000 Japanese employes on the railroad. In the same manner, it was argued that five years mean nothing when they are considered in terms of the national life of China. Public opinion reacted unfavorably against China in her stand. The fear for the reaction of the public and the short space of time left for the consideration of the question by the conference prompted the delegates to accept Japan's counter-proposals.

"The 21 demands were not listed on the agenda of the conference, which was accepted by China before the session was called. So we had to seek the opportune time and devise the suitable method to present the question before the parley. The four Root principle was adopted and we saw our opportunity here. The 21 demands were brought up under these principles, which recognised the territorial integrity of and the open door principle in China. This was done on December 4 Secretary Hughes immediately adjourned the conference when I brought up this question. Japan wanted time to reply. The Far Eastern Committee did not meet until four weeks later. Both China and Japan threatened to withdraw. Then the other powers suggested to the Chinese delegation that the matter be deferred until all other issues are settled. China agreed. At a subsequent meeting, Mr. Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador to Washington and then ranking delegate of the Japanese delegation, replied on behalf of Japan and offered the polling of the Japanese special rights in South Manchuria and Eastern Inner Mongolia by other powers interested in China and the abrogation of group five of the 21 demands.

RESERVATION MADE

"I immediately asked for time to consider the reply. The American delegation also expressed dissatisfaction over the offer made by Shidehara. So later we reserved China's right to bring this matter up for discussion at a future conference and the memoranda filed by both China and the United States are on the records of the main conference which was read at the sixth and final plenary session of the conference.

"China had suffered diplomatic defeats for almost a century. It was easy for the government to lose its sovereign rights. Many valuable rights had been signed away since she opened diplomatic intercourse with foreign nations. It is difficult for us, three 'weak voices,' to get back these rights. I am neither optimistic, nor pessimistic about the conference. I only maintain two hopes for the future peace of the Far East. First is that Japan may be expected to change her imperial policy in China and enter into all Sino-Japanese relations in a spirit of co-operation, and the second is that our own people will make a determined effort to improve our domestic situation and win the respect of the world."

IS GIVEN OVATION

An enthusiastic ovation was given Dr. Wang when he concluded his speech.

Dr. Wang was accompanied on his trans-Pacific trip by 23 advisors, secretaries and experts who were attached officially to the Chinese delegation. They include Dr. Hsu Tung-fang, advisor to the delegation and Chief of the Foreign Section of the Shantung Governor's Office of Shantung; Dr. Y. S. Tsao and Dr. Hawkling Yen, secretaries of the delegation; Dr. T. Z. Tyau, legal advisor; Dr. Yen Teh-ching and Mr. K. Y. Char, railway experts; Lieutenant Wang Tse-chen and Messrs. T. C. Yeh, V. T. Yu, Wu Kwan-wu, Kung Yeh-peh Kuo Yung-kwei, Tu Wei-cheng C. S. Yen, Hsu Shao-yung, Chin Wen-shih, Tang Ching-yi and Shang Yu-ling.

The entire delegation was invited to dinner given by Mr. C. F. Hsu, Special Commissioner of Foreign Affairs and General Ho Yung-ling held at the Foreign Bureau on Sunday night. General Ho was unable to attend on account of his indisposition. He was represented by his aide-de-camp, Colonel Wang Yu-nung. Among local notables attending the dinner were Dr. C. T. Wang, director-general of Shantung Rehabilitation; Dr. Huang Yen-pei and Shen Hsin-ching of the Kiangsu Educational Association; Mr. Kuo Ping-wen, president of the South-Eastern University, Dr. T. H. Lee of Fuhtan College, Mr. Sun Han-chang, Mr. Wang I-ting, Li Ping-hsu, Magistrate Nieh, Mr. Jabin Hsu, Mr. Li Yung-shu, Judge T. S. K. Loh, Yao Mo-lien and Chu Fu-tien.

Dr. Wang is staying at the home of his brother, Wang Ko-shang, 36 Scott Road, and plans to leave here for Peking Thursday. Other members of the delegation will accompany him.

The Shanghai branch of St. John's Alumni Association gave a dinner in Dr. Wang's honor last night at the Yih Ping Shang Hotel. Other St. John's alumni attached to the delegation were also guests.

Mr. Hsu Tung-fang spoke on the Shantung settlement at a dinner given last night in his honor by the Shanghai branch of the Shantung Diplomatic Society held at Hsiao Hsien Bi Shih, Hankow Road.

Tokio, March 12.—The Committee of the House of Representatives yesterday passed the Jury System Bill.

SHANTUNG EAGER FOR DR. WANG TO ASSUME DUTIES

Business Men And Others Send Letter To Cabinet

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, March 10.—A letter has been received by the cabinet from the Educational Association, the Agricultural Association, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Bankers' Association of Shantung, urging the immediate assumption of his duties by Dr. C. T. Wang, who has been appointed director-general for the settlement of all questions re[illegible] the return of Shantung.

The letter gives the approval of the people of Shantung of the appointment of Dr. Wang, and states that as the Japanese are using every means available to enrich themselves at the expense of the Chinese, Dr. Wang should assume his post immediately in order to put a stop to the malpractices of the Japanese.

No reply has as yet been received from Tokio concerning the alleged sale of public property at Tsingtao. It was officially stated yesterday, but from private sources it is reported that the report of illegal sales is discredited. If sales occurred at all only private property was affected, according to this source.

It was further stated by the same source that the policy of the Japanese Government is to restore cordial relations with China, to clear up misunderstandings, and to settle outstanding disputes. As an instance, the Shantung settlement was cited, which showed that Japan was anxious to smooth over matters which might cause friction.

The Japanese Government, according to the information unofficially given by this source, intends to pursue the policy of non-interference in the political situation in China but at the same time to co-operate as much as possible with China in commercial lines.

IODISED THROAT TABLETS Allay all irritation

THE General Public is hereby notified that supplies of "IXL" IODISED THROAT TABLETS, the remarkable new throat remedy that is now being so largely and successfully prescribed by physicians in Great Britain, are now being made available for residents in China.

Representing the latest advance in scientific throat medication, these tablets, by reason of their Iodine content, are indubitably superior to any other pastilles or tablets that have yet been evolved by scientific research.

Their use is positively indicated in all cases of Sore and Ulcerated Throat, Hoarseness, Quinsy, Throat Catarrh, Tonsilitis, Laryngitis, etc.

As a highly efficient throat disinfectant when epidemics are rife, IODISED THROAT TABLETS indoubtedly excel any other preparation yet put upon the market.

No malignant Diptheria, Influenza, or other germ can find lodgement on a membranous surface that has been subjected to the peculiar antiseptic influences of these tablets.

Pleasant to the palate, and allaying all irritation, each tablet, as it slowly dissolves in the mouth, releases, in harmonious combination with other fine quality medicaments, a specific quantity of the pure Tincture of Iodine, to soothe, heal, and sterilize the inflamed area.

WARNING:—All cartons of the genuine and original IODISED THROAT TABLETS bear the "IXL" trade-mark, and each tablet is embossed with the letter "A." Reject feeble substitutes.

All first-class chemists supply "IXL" IODISED THROAT TABLETS.

March 13, 1922

Spot bar silver was 33⅛d. in London and forward 33d. yesterday. The New York price is now 64¼ cents, and the London-New York cross rate 435⅛.

The official Sterling rate here today was raised to 3-2, the Gold Dollar rate to 69, the Yen rate dropped to 69 and the other rates changed in proportion.

Our market during the morning was steady, business in Sterling being done at about 3-3⅛ for March and April and 3-3 for forward.

Gold Dollars were done at 71 for March and 70⅝ for April. In the afternoon, however, the market was much easier, speculators being buyers and no cover offering. At the close there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3-2¾ for March, 3-2½ for April and 3-2⅝ for May.

The best sellers of Gold Dollars at the same time were offering 70¼ for March and 70 for forward delivery.

India and China sold silver in London on Saturday and the market there is reported to have closed steady. New York report their market as being uncertain.

Conflicting Reports On Sun's 'Invasion'

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, March 8.—Regarding Dr. Sun Yat-sen's movement in the neighborhood of Hunan, nothing reliable has come. Rumor for one day has it that Southern troops are visible at Hengchow, and that more are on their way thereto, and the following day a contradicting report says nothing but tranquility reigns in that region. One foreign correspondent from Hunan reports that Hengchow is quiet as usual, though press reports say that troops are converging there.

The delay of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's punitive expedition, so to speak, is accountable by some reason other than weather. Dr. Sun needs no propitiating weather conditions particularly to launch his hostile march. One kind of weather suits him just as well as another. He has not been waiting for spring-summer season to inaugurate his idealistic republicanism by uniting China by an expedition.

What he really needs and needs very badly is probably some real money to finance the whole work of converting a hypocritically republican China into a wholesomely democratic one.

One serious effect of political propaganda in this center is the stagnation of trade. Business here is moving sluggishly, and Chinese raw products merchants and dealers are not at all enthusiastic about jeopardising their interests by shipping China produce from inland places.

Shantung Suggests Government Plan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 10.—The Chinese residents of Tsingtao have petitioned the Government regarding the future administration of the leased territory, suggesting the adoption of the following principles:

That no military force should be stationed there.

That local self-government should be established.

Reformation of the municipal administration.

That well-trained police officers should be selected who will be mindful of the interests of residents.

Peking Officials Badly Frightened By Murder Of Pai

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, March 10.—Reports are carried in today's issues of the Chinese press which indicate that the officials of Peking have been very much frightened by the assassination of General Pai.

That the same fate as that which met the old commander of the Yichun may befall them any moment is said to be a disquieting thought to these officials and they are consequently taking every precaution to guard against attack.

Many of them are refusing to receive anyone other than their relations or intimate friends and are constantly refusing admittance to their presence of casual callers.

The newspapers, in commenting on this sudden feeling which has swept Peking officialdom, suggest that the officials behave themselves in public and private and pay less attention to power and wealth. Such a course, the papers say, will do away with the cause for any such fear, for if they are working always in the interests of the people they will soon be free from any fear of the people.

15 Killed By Blast On Soviet Transport

(China Press Service)

Constantinople, March 10.—Fifteen of the crew of the Bolshevik transport Gorki were killed and many wounded through the explosion of a cargo of hand-grenades at Trobizond.

The explosion is taken to indicate that the Soviet government is supplying arms to the Turkish nationalists.

Statues Of Kaiser Are To Be Removed

(Special To The China Press)

Berlin, March 12.—The minister of interior has directed that all busts and portraits of the ex-kaiser shall be removed from public offices. All imperial insignia also must go, even those sculptured in stone, except where their removal would injure the architectural appearance of the buildings.

Boy Emperor To Take Pair Of Wives

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 12.—Arrangements are proceeding for the double marriage of the ex-Emperor to the granddaughter of the late General Chang Shun, Manchu Governor of Kirin, and also to the daughter of Mr. Hsi Chen, the Minister of Civil Appointments in the Manchu regime, the latter becoming his "Fe" consort.

The prospective brides are at present studying Chinese and English at the ex-Regent's palace.

Status Of Radio Amateurs Fixed

(China Press Service)

Washington, March 12.—Radio amateurs are to have exclusive use of 500 to 2,000 meter wavelengths and be free of government supervision. On the other hand the government will assume control of all commercial sending stations.

Secretary Hoover, on behalf of the amateurs, pointed out that the receiving sets had increasd to hundreds of thousands during the past few months.

The American Relief Administration

BY A. ELDUK

(Russian Representative on The Staff of the A. R. A. in Russia)

Already for three months the American Relief Administration (A. R. A.) has been working in our country and yet its political function and practical significance are not yet understood in al quarters.

This is particularly true of the provinces, in other words, particularly those places in which all the activity of the A. R. A. should be especially directed and developed.

A vague understanding of this work has too frequently and too seriously injured the cause, and it is for this reason that I am going into print with a few explanations as to the facts in the case.

At the present time we may state, with the figures at our disposal, that the A. R. A. fully justifies our expectations—but we should not cherish any exaggerated hopes in this direction. We must reckon with the facts and not forget that the A. R. A. is not a final solution of the question of the feeding of children in the famine districts, it is only, so to speak, a method of approach to such a solution, a provisional and furthermore a rather hastily constructed makeshift.

It is from this standpoint that we must set out in judging its work, and we shall then see that as an organ of famine assistance the A. R. A. is unquestionably justifying our Riga agreement.

Proceeding from the general and irrefutable proposition that we must utilise resolutely every possibility of supplementing our provision resources by an influx from abroad, we must consiser the A.R.A as the greatest possibility of this nature.

Let us consider the facts. All the aid from abroad (a mere drop in the bucket!) has given us from the beginning of the famine campaign until November 13 a number of shipments aggregating 1,129 carloads (1,024,902 poods and 2 lbs.), of which the A.R.A. contributed 902 carloads (829,286 poods and 5 lbs.), and we must remember that after November 13 the work of this organisation continued expanding with increasing speed.

In addition we must also observe that by virtue of supplementary agreements this development is not only proceeding intensively but also extensively.

The figures cited refer, as we have indicated, only to provision shipments, and at present we are already receiving assistance from A.R.A. in a number of other fields. Thus we are now receiving from this organisation 320,500 pairs of shoes and 33,775 garments of various kinds.

This is only a beginning of the new field of work of the A.R.A. and we have every reason to expect a continuance of this work. Our mutual relations with the A.R.A. are also expanding because of our poverty in medical supplies. The famine is a source of all sorts of epidemics and infections of various kinds. Mortality and disease among children in the cropless districts are actually frightful.

For example; in the district of Kazan (Tatar Republic) the mortality amounts to 44.4 percent of the number of children who fall sick, and not less than 20 percent of the entire child population fall sick, until such time as we have in the provinces a sufficient quantity of the most necessary medical supplies we shall be hopelessly ipefficient in the struggle with this high death rate.

The A.R.A. has already at our disposal as many as thirty carloads of medical supplies. In the opinion of the competent comrades of the Commissariat of Health, this already amounts to a very essential assistance.

In October the A.R.A. had 1481 food stations in actual operation, which served 216,082 children. In November there was a striking change. The A.R.A. in that month was already guaranteeing the feeding of 965,000 children. I repeat this is not a solution of the situation, since we have more than 6 million starving children. But in any case it amounts to a real assistance.

Often we have occasion to hear statements made that the Americans are giving the children only a "supplomentary" ration. This is true from a purely formal standpoint and not true in reality.

As a matter of fact, this "supplementary" ration, as to its caloric value, constitutes only one-third of the normal feeding required by children, but what is there to be done after the publication of the figures of the People's Commissariat of Health. This "supplementary" ration often is the only "basic ration" the children get. Why waste words on this subject when, for example, my representative discovers in the Marxstadt morgue (in the German commune on the Volga) eleven corpses of children who died of hunger in a single night, and by their side lay the nurses of the children's hospital, who had also died of hunger. In the Tartar Republic there are 990,276 children absolutely unsupplied with food. In the Province of Samara there are more than a million children who have no "supplementary" ration to receive from anyone (supplementary to their own ration).

I am giving figures from two reports only, but the remaining figures would be just as deplorable. To be over particular about the "caloric value" of the American assistance, in the presence of these figures, seems somewhat unnecessary.

The extension of the activity of the A. R. A. has recently had a pronounced effect even on the adult population, since as many as 30,000 hospital patients are being provided rations by the A. R. A. not to mention the medical assistance furnished.

We should not pass over in silence the new operations of the A.R.A., to which we have consented in our endeavors to find ways and means of supplementing our food resources from the outside—I speak now of the opening of American depots for food packages. It is premature as yet to speak of the further course of these operations, but there are indications that they will justify all the hopes that the famine has forced us to place in them.

The above is merely a hasty review of the facts justifying our optimistic standpoint toward the work of the A. R. A. The provisions are here; they have delivered the goods. The A. R. A., as we see, is useful to us, and consequently is necessary for us, and to everything that is really useful, experience has taught us to devote the utmost attention, for it is often but a single step from the "useful" to the "necessary."

At the present moment the Russian Section of the A. R. A. has succeeded in organising for the service of the provinces the necessary body of sufficiently energetic and experienced collaborators. Thanks to their business-like aggressiveness, the work of the A. R. A. suddenly made a great forward stride. A sufficient evidence of this is the opening of great numbers of new food stations that have been reported in the last few days. But even now, we must observe with regret that the November plan has by no means as yet been carried out, in other words, the food that has been delivered to the provinces has not yet all reached the empty stomachs of the population. And even the extremely energetic staff of workers in the Russia Section, it seems, will remain powerless if it is not supported by all the energies of the local workers.

It is of course an unnatural situation that the A. R. A. should be obliged to expend its resources and its strength in feeding children at Moscow and Petrograd at a time when the actually starving people—in some cases the actually dying in the Volga region—so badly need these things. This unnatural condition offends the eyes of many comrades who are not initiated in the "secrets" of the A. R. A., but it would be senseless to permit the American foodstuffs to go to waste because we "do not manage" to get them eaten along the Volga.

Chapei Public Works

WITH reference to the letter of "Desiccated" published in our issue of Sunday last on the subject of the Chapei waterworks we are informed that neither the water works nor the electric supply in the Chapei district is under the control of the Chapei Bureau of Works and Taxes but that they are managed by a separate and independent department under the Civil Governor at Nanking. Owing to the inadequate supply of water and electricity in Chapei representations, both official and private, have been made to the high authorities and it is hoped that before very long something will be done to improve the existing deficiency.

"BRITISH SUBJECTS"

Editor: THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: I have been waiting rather patiently for some members of the Portuguese community to refute the misleading statement contained in a letter signed under the nome de plume "OBSERVER" regarding the subscription raised by the Chairman of the Club Lusitano de Shanghai to alleviate the distressing condition attending the widow and child of ex-Governor Maia who was barbarously assassinated in the late revolution of October 19, 1921.

As nobody has come forward and in order to avoid any misunderstanding, I feel in honor bound to confess that the subscription above referred to was raised on the strength of a cable which was despatched to the Chairman of the Club Lusitano de Shanghai by Mr. Joao Nolasco, who was formerly Captain of the Portuguese Company of Colonel Mesquita S. V. C. advising that Lady Maia has not a cent to her name and strongly urging the Chairman to use his influence in raising a sufficient sum to keep the widow and child of ex-Governor Maia from starvation.

"OBSERVER" must be laboring under a strong influence of illusion when he states that the Home Government has granted a monthly pension of $700 to Lady Maia. If he would simply cogitate a little bit he will no doubt come to the following hard facts:

(a) Portugal changes her Government three times in a week and Reuter's is taking it for a huge joke; hence that agency is not wiring when any new party takes up the reins of office.

(b) Portugal is in a financial chaos and with the constant changes of the Government it could hardly be expected that the new Government will pay any heed to the promise made by its predecessors.

(c) The salaries of officials in Timor are in arrears for six months and if the Government cannot pay them, how in the name of common sense can they give Lady Maia a pension.

I may here add that Mr. Joao Nolasco is in Lisbon and therefore can speak with a certain amount of authority anent the financial standing of Lady Maia. Mr. Nolasco's last letter was to the effect that no time should be wasted in raising a subscription.

Turning now to a letter signed under nome de guerre "Electric Eye" I would strongly urge him to abstain from rushing into print for he should also possess an "Electric Brain" and if he has any brain at all, let him keep the following in it and not level unseemly criticism at British subjects:

(a) When the Portuguese community was in upheaval with Mr. Barjona, formerly Consul General for Portugal in Shanghai, it was the British subjects who came forward to protect them from being treated as the natives of Africa and Timor.

(b) When the British subjects took over the control of the Club Uniao Portuguese, they found the club on the verge of bankruptcy and with debts all over the shop. It was the benign influence and propitiary efforts of the British subjects that saved the situation.

(c) That it was the Portuguese members of the Club Uniao Portuguese who requested the British members to take control of the club.

(d) The British members took control of the Portuguese Club and styled it as Shanghai Lusitano Club. They managed the club under the British jurisdiction for seven solid years and through hard work, and above all, honest, the British members were able to hand over to Club Lusitano de Shanghai (Portuguese) the assets of the Shanghai Lusitano Club (British) which amounted to $10,000.

Trusting that the "Electric Eye" will not be electrocuted by the above information, I am, etc.,

Editor: THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: They are showing pictures of Marshal Joffre's visit at one of the leading theaters here. Went last night to see them. Noticed in the review of the S.V.C. that the American Company was not shown.

I would be very pleased, in fact would consider it a favor if some of your readers could enlighten me, as to why in anything affecting the public, they always leave the Americans out?

What's the trouble? Aren't we supposed to exist? Or didn't our boys run out? Incidentally wonder just what the feeling will be in America if these pictures get that far away from Shanghai. Anyway should like to hear from some of the other Americans in Shanghai, and also what has the American Legion to say on the subject? Yours for fairness,

AMERICAN WOMAN.

Lloyd George Calls On All Nations To Establish A New Peace At Genoa

London, Jan. 21.—Prime Minister Lloyd George looks to the Genoa conference to carry the world another stage forward in the paths of peace and recuperation after the war if the United States of America will attend and help to complete the good work done by the Washington conference.

Although he was most guarded in his expression of his views, it was obvious to most of those who listened to the remarkable speech he made at Central Hall, Westminster, today, when he wound up the proceedings of the new Liberal Council convention held there, that he counts upon America. He did not say that without America nothing worth while would be accomplished at Genoa, but his whole speech by implication did convey the idea that unless the United States does take a hand there progress at Genoa may be distressingly slow and limited.

He spoke as an optimist struggling hard against adversity. All his emphasis was laid on the necessity of world peace and his conviction that that could be found only through the means of international conferthces. His references to the Washington conference, to Mr. Balfour's share in it and to the advantages of an understanding with the United States were made carefully from notes.

The problem which confronted the world, he said, was the restoration of international confidence in every country. Washington had done much to clear away the atmosphere of suspicion. Genoa, he believed, would remove other doubts and fears. Though he did not say it in so many words, he made it clear that his hopes lay in the English-speaking races.

He let his fancy play a little as he spoke of old hatreds, old feuds and old distrusts which complicate European problems and then he almost dramatised his experience of how conferences could solve them as with hands weighing the balance from side to side he pictured the weight of argument.

With arm slowly raised he illustrated the approach to agreement and with a blow of the right fist on the palm of the left hand he exclaimed:

"In the end reason prevails. When you are in conference some one will be there who will bring you face to face with realities, and it is those who never face realities who dislike conferences."

Although the British Premier's speech had to deal with many points of purely domestic politics, Lloyd George obviously regarded them as secondary and subsidiary to his main theme, world reconstruction. Even his appeal for the continuance of the coalition Government in England was based on the argument that the dominant issue of British domestic politics was need of peace in the world.

"There is one great stable country," he declared with a flash of national pride. "That is Great Britain. Do not deprive the world of the full advantages of the power and prestige of this great land by shattering them upon wretched party feeling."

Lloyd George spoke directly in reply to a resolution congratulating the Government on the Irish settlement.

The full text of the Premier's speech is given below.

FULL TEXT OF SPEECH

I congratulate the promoters of these meetings upon the finest gathering we have seen, representative of the Liberals who stood in the nation's need for national unity. A resolution has been moved and seconded of congratulation upon a task which if not altogether accomplished is well nigh accomplished. Congratulations are given myself and my colleagues on the result of our labors.

The first thing I have to say is that those congratulations have been directed to the wrong address. They ought to have been sent not to those who did it but to those who talked about it [Laughter and cheers] and never did it when they had the chance. It is a fact that we conducted long, difficult and delicate negotiations. It is true that we carried them to a successful issue. It is true we took serious decisions and faced grave responsibilities, some of us graver responsibilities than others, and I notably refer to my Unionist colleagues. [Cheers]. But after all, there were others who made speeches, who said how it ought to have been done and surely the whole credit belongs to them.

It is true that it could not have been done when those speeches were delivered. It is equally true it could not have been done at all in the way indicated by those speeches, and it is still more true that it would never had been done if it had been left to the authors of those speeches. However, I am very much obliged and glad to know that there are still some people who believe that those who did the work are entitled at any rate to some share of credit. On behalf of my colleagues and myself, who were present and who sat throughout all those meetings, I thank you cordially for that resolution.

IRISH LIBERTY ESTABLISHED

What matters, however, is that Irish liberty has been established within the empire. There are Irish Ministers in London today, Irish Ministers arriving with their democratic authority from the people of their own country who have taken their commission from lieutenants of his Majesty's Government and willingly on their appeal by way of peace.

This is the first time for over a century that you have had an Irish Government established with the wholehearted sanction of the people of Great Britain. There are difficulties before the Irish dominion will be established. There will be difficulties after it has been established, but that the good sense which the Irish people demonstrated so clearly in the recent discussions will enable them to triumph over all these difficulties and to develop a prosperous and contented Ireland which will take a high rank among the free nations that constitute the British Empire, which will be a source not of weakness but of continued and increasing strength to that empire.

The thing that struck me so much when I met the leading statesmen of other lands recently in the South of France was the intense interest taken in the Irish settlement. The impression created in every country by that settlement was immense. The belief in the enduring common sense and wisdom of the British people which had pulled them through so many difficulties that appeared at the moment to be invincible and the trust which Britain evidently still retained in the cohesive

Lloyd George's Appeal To All Nations To Meet At Genoa In A Spirit Of Peace

From Lloyd George's Speech

There is a conference to be held at Genoa, in many respects the greatest international conference ever held. The nations of Europe without distinction have been invited to come. Why have they all been invited to come? Because we want to put an end to these constant wars and rumors of wars which are just as bad, or at least almost as bad, for international business as war itself. You hear one day that Russia is arming to attack Poland, that Poland is organising an insurrection in the Ukraine, that Russia is going to attack Rumania and that Finland is going to attack a part of Russia. You hear that one of the States that used to constitute the Austrian Empire is threatening its neighbors and that its neighbors threaten it back.

There is no stability in that. You cannot build up business on that rotten foundation. There are rumors and rumbles in Central Europe and we are going to bring the countries together face to face and see if there is a chance of bringing them to some reasonable understanding.

If you come to that conference, if men go there, if statesmen of all the nations go there determined to remove difficulties and not to create them, determined to help and not to hinder, there will be a great pact of peace as a result of the conference, and I would appeal from here as far as my feeble voice shall extend, not merely to this room, but even more I would appeal to all men in power, to all rulers of men who have got the opportunity to determine it, to go there in spirit of peace and peace will ensue.

The Pneumonia Month.

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ ladened mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly. Sold Everywhere

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

qualities of that freedom, all that has made a deep impression. It has undoubtedly enhanced the prestige of Britain throughout the world and give added value to her counsel and deprived altogether her enemies of the force of that taunt that we were always willing to give excellent advice to other lands which we were unable to follow ourselves. That has gone.

GIVES CREDIT TO UNIONISTS

I must correct one of the statements made by my friend Mr. Shakespeare, who had seconded the resolution. It is by no means the work of one man. I am not saying it merely out of compliment but out of respect for the truth. Every member of that delegation worked hard and contributed materially, one with one suggestion and one with another, and all these were brought together, sifted and adapted to the situation. It could not have been done without the combined efforts of these men supported by their colleagues. I am certain my colleagues here would allow me to single out my unionist colleagues because of the loyal and eminent part which they took.

My fairly long experience of public life teaches me that it is easier to face foes than friends. You are accustomed to hit in that direction and instinctly out it goes. But with friends you are accustomed to give the open hand and when they quarrel it goes to the heart. And I know how my unionist colleagues must have felt having to encounter the opposition of the people they had worked and associated with in the loyalty and friendship of their life, and the nation owes a debt of gratitude to them for that greatest courage of all, moral courage. That is all I wanted to say about Ireland.

THE GENERAL ELECTION

There has been a good deal of talk recently about the general election. Who started it? I did not [laughter] and I certainly have not made up my mind about it. It is my business not to do so until the last moment. [Laughter.] Then all hear about it. I have nothing to add to the very admirable statement made on the subject by my friend and colleague Mr. Chamberlain. I reinforce one observation made by him that the exercise of this perogative is not a very suitable subject for public discussion. The only other thing I would say is this that suggestions, which have been unfortunately made, that a general election was an idea started by Liberal Coalitionists in order to get rid of the reform of the House of Lords has absolutely no basis in truth and it is a pure invention. Liberal Coalitionists are just as much pledged as any other Liberals to the reform of the House of Lords. I was a member of a purely Liberal Administration. The head of that administration, Mr. Asquith pledged himself definitely in most emphatic terms, in most insistent and urgent terms to the reform of the House of Lords and went so far as to say, I think about ten years ago, that it was a subject that brooked no delay. So as a member of a Liberal Government I am just as much pledged as the head of the Independent Liberal Party to reform of the House of Lords and our section of the party at any rate is not in the habit of shirking difficulties.

But I will tell you one thing we gain by these reports of a general election. There have been people in life who have been fortunate enough, after being abused a good deal, to have had premature report of their death, and they read in the papers most glowing and kindly obituary notices about themselves. That is more or less my feeling in reading the newspapers when the report came that there was going to be a general election. Before that we were an extravagant, wasteful Government, profligate, ruining business and trade, and the sooner we were got rid of the better. Then somebody said, "Do you know they are going?" They turned round and said, "How dare they?" [Loud laughter and cheers.]

They said, "Have they not got another two years' agreement?"

"They are willing to surrender that. We expected a paean of joy."

"Not at all," they said. "You will kill trade."

"What, getting rid of an extravagant, wasteful Government?"

"Yes. Why, it will cost," they said, "two millions."

But what is that to the thousand of millions we have been squandering and are still squandering. Two millions spread over two years. It is too much to get rid of the most extravagant and prodigal Government that England ever saw. If we stay we are bunging, if we go we are tricking; well, we must either go or stay. I will tell you what it all means, and I will tell you something else that is interesting.

REPLY TO ASQUITH

It was a speech by Mr. Asquith. Mr. Asquith does not like us. It was a speech in parts very amusing—unconscious, as far as I can see. His complaint is not that we are not doing the right thing, but he had done it three years ago. That is just like him. He was always prompt. He was always ahead of things [Laughter]. So, wait and see about him. [Renewed laughter]. Three years before any one else thought of the things—well, he did it. Well, the nation evidently could not keep up with his promises, and he now has been indulging in a rather dreary tirade about our extravagance and mismanagement.

But I expected them to end this great indictment by a passionate demand that we should go, that the country should have an opportunity immediately of getting rid of us. Not a word. Do you know what it means? It means that all these things they have been saying and writing and urging are not believed by the people who say them. Otherwise is it conceivable that if that were true there would not be insistent demands that the nation be asked immediately to pronounce opinion and to save itself from such a disastrous Government?

So much have I got to say about a general election, but whether the election comes early or comes late—and it must come some day—we shall have but one policy to put before the country a policy not dictated by electioneering exigencies, but the policy demanded by the needs of the country and of the world.

What is the country doing? What is the country's position? What is the world's position? We have come through an exhausting and devastating war which has created an almost unexampled position. Not quite. It is comparable perhaps to the position of the Napoleonic wars, after which had to be restored the position of commerce and the economic life of the world. But this was an infinitely greater, it was an infinitely more exhausting, war—a more costly, more destructive war, and therefore the loss which has to be repaired is incalculably greater. We have shattered trade. We have increased burdens.

NEEDS OF THE WORLD

Now I am going to deal with each if I can have your indulgence. Trade is in a worse position throughout the world than anybody has ever witnessed. In our own land there are 2,000,000 of unemployed. In the United States of America there are many more. Why is that? There is greater need for our goods in the world than ever before; there is less demand. It is not so much that the world cannot produce wealth which would enable it to pay for those goods if credit could be got, but credit is impossible without confidence and stability, and the problem which confronts Great Britain and the world might be summed up in one phrase—the restoration of international confidence confidence in Great Britain, confidence in other countries, but above all, confidence of one country in every other country.

International confidence is the basis of international trade. We are a country above all that depends upon international trade If there is no international trade there is desolation here, and to restore that you must restore international confidence.

How can you approach that problem? The electric currents of trade must necessarily be irregular and feeble in the disturbed atmosphere of the world, and without confidence you cannot build up credit, without credit you cannot have trade, and without trade you cannot have subsistence for our people. You cannot fill up the exhausted reservoirs depleted by the war.

Our burdens will become intolerable and bankruptcy will stare the world in the face unless action is taken, internatonal action—not merely action of one land, but of all lands.

How can confidence be established? I am sometimes asked by friends of mine, why do you devote so much of your time to foreign affairs? Why don't you give more of your time to domestic matters?"

I will tell you why. Until you restore peace to the world we shall be the greatest victims and sufferers. In order to restore confidence you must establish a real peace in the world. If before 1914 traders had realised that peace was so precarious they would have shrunk from the most ordinary happenings, trade has had a great shock in the war. It feels frightened, it is scared. You must restore its nerve. As long as there are questions which incite unrest and create disturbances you will not get trade to take the necessary risks.

TO RESTORE UNDERSTANDING

Peace must be based upon the firm basis of a good understanding amongst all peoples. That is the first condition of economic restoration in the world and that is the task in front of the Governments, not merely our Government, but all Governments throughout the world.

I am one of those who believe (and I think you will agree with me) that the less Governments interfere with trade the better [Prolonged cheers.] For that reason I fully approve of the resolution carried yesterday. The safeguarding of industries bill is dealing with a purely temporary situation of quite an abnormal character. The world has never seen anything like it I am not going to plead that we inherited it. We did, as a matter of fact. It was based upon resolutions made in an eloquent and forcible speech by Mr. Asquith. But I do not plead that; I plead the exigencies of international finance. But that is a purely temporary condition. In normal conditions the less Governments interfere with trade the better for trade and the better for Governments.

I will tell you what a Government can do. They can produce and guarantee only conditions which make trade possible. What are those? You talk of programs There is one urgent program one urgent item of a program. Let us inscribe it on our banners: "Peace on earth and good will amongst men."

In seeking to establish a general understanding among nations you require great patience, for there are many distrusts and suspicions. There are men who think they could have done it by a stroke of the pen had they been at Versailles two or three years ago. Those, who think that cannot have read the foreign press, not then and not now. Otherwise it would have cured them of their delusions. But progress has been made gradually; it has been made by patience by continuity, by not being in a hurry, by not rushing things carrying the conviction and judgment of all peoples along with you gradually as they realised the difficulties in the way of extravagant and extreme proposals

GAINS FROM WASHINGTON

The Washington conference has been a notable event, one of the outstanding events of the world, an example to follow, and we owe a deep debt of gratitude to Mr. Balfour for the notable part which he has taken in that conference. It is a source of pride to us as Britishers that we should be so represented at that great international gathering.

His eloquence, his tact, his high statesmanship, have added lustre to an already distinguished career.

The conference is not over, but great things have been already achieved. Were it only an interchange of views and the removal of prejudice—four-fifths of the difficulties of the world come from suspicions; most quarrels are bred in suspicion which should be removed by sensible interchange of opinions—that at any rate has been accomplished and I am hopeful of much more. Nothing has ever done as much to restore a good understanding between the United States of America and ourselves and the peace of the world largely depends upon that foundation.

When coming to the European situaton here, you are dealing with old and rooted complications; you have old hatreds, old rivalries, old feuds, old suspicions, old distrusts: The best and worst in the national lives of European peoples, in their passions and in their ideals are inexplicably mixed. When you begin to deal with any European problem you begin to realise it requires unfailing patience, persistence, continuity and refusal to be dismayed by temporary setbacks. The men who think they can cleanse Europe of its ills and straighten out the European tangle in two or three years are either ignorant of real conditions or they are misleading their public.

What has happened in France shows how warily you have to tread among so many bristling suspicions. There is only one way to affect, greatly improve and ultimately reach the goal and that is by insisting on bringing the nations to the test of reason and not of force.

How are you to do that? Insistent meetings, discussing, reasoning and, let us say the word conference. If there had been a conference in 1914, in July, there would have been no catastrophe in August; it would have been impossible. You watch it. It is my business to watch it, and this is what happens when you do not meet to interchange views. Misunderstandings arise, misunderstandings ripen almost into entanglements, fierce controversies begin. After an interval you have conference and misunderstandings disappear, suspicions are removed and there is improved temper, and, although you do not achieve the ultimate result you get nearer to it. It is true you cannot point to a single conference that has settled the entanglements, but each conference is a rung in the ladder that enables you to reach ultimate peace on earth. [Lord cheers.]

There are those who go back to the old note and say, "Let us get rid of conferences. Let us interchange dispatches and letters." What follows? Each party states its own point of view, and, instead of bringing the parties together it too often hardens them in their convictions. You cannot have it out with a letter, you cannot argue with a dispatch, you cannot reason with a diplomatic message. Come face to face and I have profound conviction and faith in the ultimate reason of man.

I am an optimist. I believe in my fellow-men made in the image of God and you bring them together to talk quietly and reason prevails.

The greatest appeal to the return to old diplomacy is made by those who have been devastated by it. If you had had a conference under the new methods you would not have had the provinces of France now awaiting repair. It is no use tibing at France. It is very easy. The men who hate conferences are the men of rigid views, the men who dislike facing realities, but once in a conference there is somebody, at any rate, who brings them face to face with realities. There are people who have never looked a reality in the face, and it is a good thing forcing them to do it now and again.

All those who are anxious for peace should have the courage to tread the only path that leads to peace and believe in open discussion.

THE GENOA CONFERENCE

There is a conference to be held at Genoa, in many respects the greatest international conference ever held. The nations of Europe without distinction have been invited to come. Why have they all been invited to come? Because we want to put an end to these constant wars and rumors of wars, which are just as bad, or at least almost as bad, for international business as war itself. You hear one day that Russia is arming to attack Poland, that Poland is organising an insurrection in the Ukraine, that Russia is going to attack Rumania and that Finland is going to attack a part of Russia. You hear that one of the States that used to constitute the Austrian Empire is threatening its neighbors and that its neighbors threaten it back.

There is no stability in that. You cannot build up business on that rotten foundation. There are rumors and rumbles in Central Europe, and we are going to bring the countries together face to face and see if there is a chance of bringing them to some reasonable understanding.

The present condition of things is bad for us. That that must be so is realised by sensible people in Great Britain. They say, "What a beginning; forty-five nations and a thousand experts; what extravagance; a thousand experts, financial, diplomatic and economic."

They are cheaper than military experts [loud and prolonged cheers], their retinue is smaller. One thousand experts, and we have just concluded an argument conducted between the same nations lasting four and a half horrible years! There were 30,000,000 of men engaged in that conference, there were 10,000,000 of young men left dead on the debating ground, ten more millions mutilated, 50,000,000,000 of expenses. People may better try another conference [loud and prolonged cheers]. Look at poor Europe, bleeding, devastated, desolate, distressed! Do give us another chance of talking together, appealing to reason, seeing whether we cannot get men to listen to me, and see whether the old sense of brotherhood that is at the bottom of all of the human race will not end in grasping hands and in friendly co-operation with the rest, and not in conflicts that bring disaster and ruin upon all.

APPEALS TO ALL NATIONS

When you come to that conference, if men go there, if states

men of all the nations go there determined to do their best, determined to remove difficulties and not to create them, determined to allay suspicions and not to arouse them, determined to help and not to hinder, there will be a great pact of peace as a result of the conference, and I would appeal from here as far as my feeble voice shall extend, not merely to this room, but, even more, I would appeal to all men in power, to all rulers of men who have got the opportunity to determine it, to go there in a spirit of peace, and peace will ensue. [Cheers.]

Without peace it is no use having economics. For that reason we placed deliberately on the agenda of this conference the first question of establishing peace in Europe. We put it first, why? Because unless you can do that it is no use somebody asking the experts to discuss financial schemes, trade credit schemes. The trader won't go out in bad weather, he has had enough of it, he is drenched to the skin and there is nowhere yet to dry his clothes. You must first of all sweep the clouds away, give him a fair and clear atmosphere, and he will go out, and the trader will become the missionary of peace. Schemes may expedite and schemes may facilitate, but without peace every scheme must fail.

I have one other word to say about the Genoa conference. I have read that Lord Grey and I believe that Lord Robert Cecil thinks the Genoa conference ought to be left to the League of Nations. I am a believer in the League of Nations. I wish some of those friends would not run it as if it were a sort of little party show too often. They must remember the League of Nations is established by the much abused Treaty of Versailles, and, therefore, as one of the also much abused authors of that much abused treaty, I naturally have great belief in what was partly the work of my own hands. But you must not run a thing like this too hard. If you give work to the League of Nations which for special reasons it is not adapted to discharge, you do harm to the League of Nations. The League of Nations is in the making and you cannot make things by written constitutions. You must create confidence in it, and confidence can only be created by achievement, and every failure which the League could very well afford when it was well established, every failure at this stage, is a ruinous one. It is like the fall of an infant; it may get a broken spine, and it would simply limp for the rest of its days. It must establish itself, but it cannot do that if you entrust it with duties which at the moment it is obvious, for special reasons, it is unfit to carry through to such a full issue.

AMERICA AND RUSSIA

I say that in this case we are anxious to get all the nations there to this conference. There were two nations who certainly would not be there if the conference had been summoned under the auspices of the League of Nations, and the first is the United States of America. I am not going to express an opinion as to whether the United States is likely to be there at all, and if I did I would only do harm. If you leave the League of Nations to summon the conference, it practically rules out the United States of America, and the responsibility then would be ours, not theirs. Has it ever occurred to them that Russia had refused to do anything with the League of Nations. We turned the League of Nations on to Russia, I forget when, two or three years ago, and Russia refused absolutely to have anything to do with it. It is not for me to express an opinion. I know something of the reasons, from what was said. I am not going to discuss that. There is the great fact—there are two great nations, and if you are going to establish peace and going to get the economic restoration of the world, it is necessary that you should get there these two nations, and they would not be there if the conference were summoned under the auspices of the League of Nations. I should think that was a satisfactory reason.

Well, that is what we are doing to restore peace. The Washington conference is establishing peace in the great West and I am looking forward to the Genoa conference to establish peace in the East. They will be like the two wings of the Angel of Peace hovering over the world. The trader and financier and manufacturer can go forth without fear of hidden traps and perils and destructions. The worker can labor without apprehension. Credit can be given and extended and the broken avenues of trade repaired, normal life resumed and the world march on to plenty and tranquility.

That is our program of peace. There will be no peace unless there is real understanding and unless understanding is followed by considerable reductions in menacing armaments that still encumber and burden the world. If you add up the cost of those armaments you find they reach appalling dimensions. What is the reason? After the Napoleonic wars Europe was so exhausted and war was so unpopular you had no great European war for forty years. If you can succeed in putting off war for one generation at any rate it gives the world time to recuperate and recover its lost position.

If an understanding is established in this great conference I feel very confident that the nations themselves, burdened as they are with the cost of these extravagant armaments, will demand a reduction. In this country we are setting the example. We have already discarded conscription, reduced our army or are reducing it below the pre-war figure. We are reducing our navy and our air force.

Nations must take risks for peace as well as for war and the greatest risk that faces a nation now is the risk of bankruptcy.

I mean to have said a word about reparations from Germany, which has to be dealt with. I am not one of those who believe that Germany ought to be let off the payment of that sum for damage wantonly committed by her. France is laboring under very heavy burdens in order to repair that damage, so is Belgium, so is Italy and other countries, and Germany ought to pay. In a civil suit between individuals, an individual would have to pay costs. Germany can pay hers. Germany, like every other country, is suffering from the great collapse of international trade. Second to ourselves, she depends more upon international trade than anybody. She is suffering; that is temporary, that can be dealt with by experts. As a matter of fact, before the Cannes conference dissolved experts had come to an arrangement which I think was satisfactory, which I believe Germany could have accepted. It was provisionally agreed among us and I am hopeful that something of the same kind will be done again unless folly intervenes. But it is a matter that must be dealt with. It must be put upon a firm basis so that Europe should know exactly where she is. Delay is dangerous and the sooner it is settled the better.

ECONOMY AT HOME

I must say a word about the question of economy which has been raised. If there is a general understanding between nations it is easy to walk along the path of economy, because it is easier for us to curtail our expenditure in the most costly item, and that is the provision of security of this country. It is essential to reduce the burden of the taxpayer to the lowest possible figure consistent with national security and efficiency. Year by year since the war we have been engaged in cutting down. You must not imagine that it is an easy task. There are people who talk about the axe. They have no idea of the many nails there are in the wood, and unless you are competent, more harm is done to your axe than to the timber—much.

We sought first of all to produce economy through departments. It is almost unfair because each branch is naturally concerned about preserving its own strength and efficiency, and instinctively, though not deliberately, offers resistance. If anybody offered to cut off one of your nails, although you might imagine you were serving the State in doing so, still natural instinct would come and would make you draw back, and the same thing applies when you begin to lop off in departments. They do not like it, and when you cut deep into the branches which they have fostered with care and watched the growth with pride, it is very difficult, so we decided on an absolutely new experiment.

We appointed a committee of business men, with a Chairman who had experience of several departments. Of course you had the usual jeers about business men, but now there is a great demand from people who laugh at us for the publication of this valuable document. When it was appointed it was a farce, but now it is asked, "Why is a valuable report of these great men withheld from the public gaze? There is some reason—the Ministers, of course," say these people, and they demand it. It is just like the story of the general election.

But it will be published. The investigation and report are not complete, but we intend to publish it. I will not anticipate publication by discussing it. The report requires, demands and will involve very drastic, very searching, very ruthless cutting down. It will provoke criticism and resistance not merely from the interests, but from many men honestly concerned about the efficiency of particular branches.

But you must take some risks. You must take into account the state of the national exchequer, you must take into account not merely what you would like to do, but what you can afford to do. You cannot insure against every risk that is likely to arise. If you think of every risk that is likely to befall you and take out an insurance policy for every one, your income vanishes. If we must keep our expediture within our income, take a few reasonable risks so as to avoid the risk of bankruptcy, and it is in that spirit that I invite the nation to assist to carry out the report of this relentless committee.

Having established peace abroad, we must have peace at home—peace between classes. If international trade were restored tomorrow you could not reap the full benefit unless there was cordial co-operation between all those who are engaged in the production of our wealth. One knows how hardly we were hit by the great strike of last year. If the whole machinery of production is to be torn up and a completely new and revolutionary system substituted for it by which State action is to take the place of individual enterprise, the revival of international trade will have comparatively little interest for Great Britain, for, while we are engaged in scrapping the machinery which has produced our wealth and our prosperity, our trade will pass away into other hands and may never return. You can only do those things successfully if national unity is preserved. That is the essential condition.

More depends on Great Britain than on land if the peace of Europe is to be restored. Europe and the world are looking to the steadiness of Great Britain. She has been steady, she has never stirred, she has never wavered; her policy has never fluctuated.

That is the source of our power, and if you break up national unity and set up a rocky and precarious party organisation instead of the national organisation you have at present, Great Britain goes down. If you restore party strife the energies of statesmen, which should be devoted entirely to the restoring of the position consequent upon the war, will be absorbed by petty party politics. My friends and I have been engaged in party conflicts. We have taken our fair share, but there is one thing about a party fight, and that is, it is the most absorbing business that ever came to a man. [Laughter.] It takes all your energies and thoughts and zeal, and very often the smallest point is most zealous for argument because it requires more zeal in order to drive it home and to attract attention to it. That is what will happen if you are going to resume the old party fights. Statesmen will have their best minds concentrated on partisan squabbles at home instead of giving all their energies, all their intelligence, all their experience, all their strength in pulling the old country through. [Cheers.]

If we had a renewal of party conflict I feel that the men whom I see round me and myself could quite hold our own from that point of view. I do not dread it in the least, I dread it for the country. Since we decided upon a policy of national unity, I tell you in all honor, I have never given a thought to party advantage [loud and prolonged cheers]. I have thought about nothing but the means of helping my native land to win through. I joined the Coalition Ministry in 1915. I gave up then the position which is regarded as second in the political hierarchy and took in the coalition one of the lowest positions. In that coalition I thought I could serve the country best. Pardon this personal reference. So much of the attack on the coalition centers round my highly controversial personality that I had to say it.

In 1916 I never sought the headship of a coalition. I offered to serve under anybody who would do his best to win the war. I offered to serve with Mr. Bonar Law or with Mr. Balfour, and it is because they thought it was better that I should take the headship of the coalition that I was chosen. It was not my choice, it was not seeking, it was not my proposal; it was entirely theirs. That is why I am here. As long as I am there I will do my best, and when I cease to be there I will still do my best, and when I say that national unity is necessary it is because I believe it in all consciousness is essential until the country is restored to something like normal conditions.

LOSS IN PARTY QUARRELS

What is there to quarrel with? We have achieved great things by national unity. You would not have won the war if there had been a party fight. I have seen ministers trying to give their minds to war in other countries when there were faction attacks upon them. You could not have done it. You could not have settled Ireland if you had returned to the party system. It would have been impossible, it would have aroused so much prejudice, antagonism and hostility. For many reasons it would have been impossible for a single party to carry us through. The Manchester Guardian very fairly stated that you cannot restore the peace of Europe on the two part system. Other countries might perhaps do it. I wonder where those countries are. Where are they? There is one great stable country. That is Great Britain. Do not deprive the world of the full advantage of power and prestige in this great saving land by shattering her realities upon wretched party feeling. What is there to quarrel about? Is peace liberal or is it conservative? Which? Gladstone and Bright, they were great Peace Ministers, so was Canning, so was Peel. Mr. Balfour has achieved the greatest triumph that any Minister could possibly have accomplished. Is peace a party quarrel? Why quarrel about it? Why pull its wings, one by one, Liberal dragging this and Conservative dragging that until it cannot move?

What is there to quarrel about? Private enterprise, the resistance to revolutionary policy, to the overthrow of the individual enterprise that has made this country? What is the difference between Liberals and Conservatives there? The Liberal says: "I believe in freedom, therefore I am opposed to fettering industry with any such regulations. I am therefore for private and individual enterprise." That is the way he approaches the question. The Conservative says: "I am in favor of maintaining the institutions that have created the greatness and prosperity of this country. I consider private enterprise to be one of them. I approach it from that point of view." But they are both serving the same cause.

There is one army entering the Citadel from that gate and there is another army entering by this gate and the coalitionist says "We are fighting to defend same fortresses. Let's combine forces. The die-hards—and there are die-hards in both parties, there are Tory die-hards and there are Liberal die-hards—they say: "Well, you have approached from different directions. You marched in in that direction, the Conservatives marched in in opposite directions, therefore you are fundamentally opposed to each other and the first thing you have got to do is to fight it out among yourselves as to who shall garrison the fortress." The survivors will do it, meanwhile the enemy will march in through the third gate and capture and destroy the city. I, with all the emphasis at my command, I say it will be fatal in this hour to return to the old party conflicts until the task of national unity has been accomplished. If that is done the responsibility must rest on those who made that choice. My friends could not accept that responsibility, but if we are put to it we shall not shrink from our duty. Those are the proposals I got from them.

Each generation is assigned its task by Providence. Sometimes it is assigned to one nation, sometimes to another and the nation that shrinks or shirks it is doomed. To one generation the great duty of the hour is the winning of religious freedom, the next civil freedom, another generation is called upon to devote its energies and its power to achieving national honor and national freedom against great forces that threaten them with overthrow. The next generation may have the more common place task of developing the material resources of the country with the help of human ingenuity. The next concentrates upon making better provision for the toilers who produce the wealth. That is the task which is always with us. But above all the tasks committed to this generation now is to learn and profit by the lessons of the great war. [Cheers]. The lessons scourged into the flesh of the world and from which it is still sore and fevered and the lesson of the time has come to inaugurate the reign of peace amongst men.

It is our task especially as a great empire to help in bringing peace to the continent which has been tormented for unknown ages by the savagery of endless wars, so that this fine and virile race can concentrate their resolute energies in a more serene and tranquil atmosphere and make their contribution towards solving the eternal problems of mankind. [Loud cheers].
